CO-FOUNDER AND EDITOR, EATER.COM

It all started when a co-worker needed help entertaining his girlfriend. Native New Yorker Ben Leventhal created SheLovesNY.com, a "gentleman's guide," and he's been addicted to insider guide-blogs ever since. The 28-year-old is now the editorial director of Curbed Media, a network of city sites, and the editor and co-founder of Eater, which covers the drama of NYC and L.A.'s restaurant scenes (openings, closings and chef scandals are chewed over with glee). As if he didn't have enough on his plate, Leventhal just launched Eater San Francisco, and Curbed and Eater Chicago are expected by the end of the year.
